All of the 14 artists that we present here have freely chosen to make their works freely available by anyone. However, you are also free (and we strongly invite you to do so) to buy their albums!

We'd like to say Thanks to Patatozor (patatozor.free.fr) for his hook image, and Kudos for being a father since very recently. This first chapter of the Pirate Compilation (hopefully there will be many more) was realized by Daedalus, Floyd, Pers and MaryPoppins; some ordinary citizens brought together by their common aspirations to make the « civilized » world a better place.

Culture and artists will no longer be toys for industrials and politicians. To begin with, the music belongs to those who make it, those who enjoy it. To you. To us.

Have a good listening.

The Parti Pirate, France.

NOTES

How to print this booklet?

The simplest solution is to actually print it twice; this way you can copy it and make anyone you love discover the Pirate Compilation as well...

Having printed the booklet as any normal, „recto-only”, document, then choose one of the following two methods:

Method 1:

Invert the order of the printed sheets manually. Then turn the sheets stack backside, before putting it in the printer again. Then print one more time the booklet (this will provide you with the verso).

Method 2:

Just turn the sheet stack backside, and put it in the printer again; but when printing the verso, check the option box called „reverse printing” (or uncheck it if previously checked).

Beware: when turning the sheets backside, do it on a horizontal axis, and not a vertical axis (e.g. think about a car trunk, and not a car door).

Once you're done with the two-sides printing (that is, once you've spoiled a dozen of cartridges and thrown away your printer through the window), just keep the first half of the sheets stack, and cut the white margins. The first sheet (this very one) is to be put under the CD-case. The other sheets are to be folded, and will (hopefully) provide you with a nice booklet.

Have fun... and bon courage !
